AZIZZA SAYS

The Sacramento Black Chamber of Commerce has a really busy schedule the last quarter of each year. We ran into a little thing called a pandemic a few years ago and began planning our events in the latter part of the year in hopes we would be able to meet more often in person. It worked well but we have not changed our schedule since then. This year we find that we have one large event each month beginning in September. As I have written in the past, September is our major advocacy program, PROSPER, which will be held in Washington DC. Our topic of conversations will focus on workforce development and how we prepare our members and our community for jobs that were once thought to be jobs of the future. Those jobs are now here and the SBCC wants to assure that our community is up to the task of being hired in those fields without prejudice. We will meet with our legislators, department heads and cap the week off with a fireside chat with experts in the fields of transportation, education, energy and economic development. They will speak to needs of each sector and discuss how their collaborative efforts will provide success to our region in building sustainability in our underrepresented communities. We will bring this fireside chat back to Sacramento and host the discussion here for those that will not travel with us to Washington D.C.

October is our Women's Forum ... Connecting the Dots. We are lining up some exceptional women to speak their truths about how they've successfully connected the Dots to the level of success they aspired to achieve. You will be seeing the Save the Date for that event any day now. Just an FYI, that event will be moving to March in 2024 to coincide with Women's History month!

November will showcase our sixth year of collaborating with the Hispanic and Rainbow Chambers of Commerce on our very popular Diversity Summit.

And lastly, in December will be our annual Installation and Awards Banquet, followed by our Holiday mixer with the Hispanic and Asian Chambers of Commerce.

We want to give you every opportunity to network with our other small member businesses and watch the magic happen between you. So stay tuned for more information on these events and be sure to save the dates and join us.
